Happy Days Are Here Aain For Fur Trappers

EDMONTON (BUP) — Alberta game branch officials say about 3.000 trappers will operate on registered trap lines this year to harvest muskrat pelts,that are expected to bring higher prices than in 1954

In addition, there will be thousands of persons trapping on private land.

Edmonton fur buyers say they expect an increase of 15 to 25 per cent in prices. So far this season, average lots of muskrat pelts have brought trappers 90 cents to $1.25. Top quality pelts have run as high as $1.65.

Game branch officials say the stronger market and fewer well-pay ng jobs elsewhere are expected to increase the number of trappers this year. More furs are expected to be sold and the trappers are expected to make more money.

EDMONTON (BUP) — Alberta Health Minister Doctor W. W. Cross says the possibility of delaying the third shot of salk polio vaccine for Alberta school children will be decided after a meeting late this month.

Dr. Cross said a decision will be made after a dominion health council meeting to be held April 25 to 28.

The health department has distributed all the vaccine needed to give two shots to the 41,500 children expected to receive the vaccine this year. The supply for the third dose for the children will be received by May 20 and a decision will be made before then when the final shot will be given.

Paid Own Way To Europe—Hooke

EDMONTON — Public Works Minister Hooke told the Alberta legislature the government "didn't pay a cent" toward his trip to Europe last summer.

"I went entirely on my own," he told Liberal opposition leader J. Harper Prowse who had asked for a return setting out details of the trip.

Mr. Hooke visited Europe to inspect public buildings and auditoriums with a view to obtaining ideas for the design of provincial jubilee auditoriums in Calgary and Edmonton.

Legislature Approves Property Transactions

EDMONTON — (BUP) — The Alberta legislature wound up 35-days of deliberations last week by approving a report which gave the Social Credit government a clean bill of health in five controversial property transactions.

The house will meet again May 10th to clean up unfinshed business, including government bills providing for producer controlled marketing boards for agricultural products and a new approach to highway safety.

Members are also expected to consider the outlook for provincial gas production and export in light of the delay in starting the $300,000,000 Trans-Canada Pipeline.

Two recorded votes ended the controversy over the sale of one building and the purchase of four pieces of property which produced practically all of the fireworks during the session.

Members approved by a 43 to 9 margin a report from the Public Accounts Committee which cleared the government of involvement in any irregularities in the sale of Provincial Building Number Two in Edmonton. The report also said there was no waste of public funds in the purchase of the Alberta Block in Edmonton, a liquor store site in Calgary and two jail sites near Calgary.

The Season Ahead

When spring comes around each year there seems to be an irresistible temptation to attempt predictions of crop production for the ensuing season. These efforts at prophesy, however, are for the most part pure guesswork. The outcome of grain crops depends on weather conditions, and weather forecasting in the prairie provinces of western Canada is a most uncertain undertaking.

Long-range weather experience in the prairie regions shows that dry and wet cycles follow each other at irregular intervals. There is a substantial acreage centering on southeast Alberta and southwest Saskatchewan which is more subject to severe drouth than other parts of the prairie regions. In recent years this particular region has been favored with ample and timely rainfall and it is from there that the extra-heavy production of grain has come. No one can say whether this coming season will be dry or wet.

At the present time sub-soil moisture appears to be above normal on summerfallowed land in almost every district in the province of Alberta. Last autumn was exceptionally dry . In the Calgary district only 1 inch of rain fell from September to December inclusive and that in the first few days of September. Nevertheless, abundant rains during August provided a substantial moisture reserve. In that month the rainfall at Calgary was 9.3 inches. Total rainfall from April to the early part of September was 16.8 inches.

It would seem, therefore, that crops should have ample moisture to provide a good start. The final outcome depends on the abundance and timeliness of rainfall in the latter part of May and in the month of June. A drouthy June always spells disaster to growing crops.

This coming season Alberta farmers will probably seed 12,830,000 acres to grains of which a little over 6 million acres will be to wheat. The barley acreage will total around 3,600,000, an increase of 547,000 acres over last year. It is estimated that about 2,640,000 acres will be planted to oats, increase of 286,000 acres. The growing crop will have to run the risks of drouth, hail and insect pests before harvest time comes. Notwithstanding the surplus situation, particularly with wheat, the general hope is for a good crop in 1955.

Foresees Glass Planes

Sir Arnold Hall, director of the Royal Aircraft Experimental establishment at Farnborough, recently predicted that glass airliners would follow as the next cycle in the evolution of jet transportation. Hall predicted such airliners would travel between New York and London in less than three hours.

He said such planes would be superior to aluminum alloy planes, the metal now used for airplanes, because it would not wear as rapidly as the metal alloy. He also predicted that the glass fibre necessary to make tougher air frames would be cheaper than the metal alloy, eventually.

Sir Arnold believes that glass fibre aircraft, powered by jet or rocket engines, will travel at altitudes of 50,000 feet or more and probably at speeds of over 1300 miles an hour. That would be twice the speed of sound.

He believes that the aircraft industries in the various countries must turn to glass fibre plastics because it is the only competitor to aluminum and aluminum alloys, and—when perfected and produced in quantity—would produce an air frame even superior to aluminum alloy.

Sir Arnold's observations are only one man's opinion and he does not predict the evolution of glass fibre aircraft in the immediate future. He says there might be a generation of civilian aircraft, flying at speeds of five to six hundred miles an hour, before the faster glass fibre aircraft are put into use. In other words, New York - London passengers might have to be content with four-or-five hour crossings for a while, before the two-hour, plus, schedules via glass airliners are available.

The Bible Today

Then Satan answered the Lord, and said, Doth Job fear God for nought?—Job 1:9.

Sword Of Hope

Back a few centuries when a literate person was a rare phenomenon in the Old Country, inn-keepers and tradesmen depended on pictorial signs for identification of their establishments. For a date at a tavern, one said, "I'l meet you at the sign of the Brown Jug." Or if you wished to find a barber, or a surgeon, you simply looked for the striped pole signifying both professions.

That quaint but necessary custom in our country passed along with illiteracy, but it has its parallel now in a familiar usage—that of identifying many phases of modern life with symbols.

Today one of the most important of those symbols is the Canadian Cancer Society's sword. For years that sign, on a flag, a door, a window, or an inner wall, has been a rallying point for legions of socially-minded people—physicians, research scientists, and laymen—all deeply concerned about cancer control.

This weapon, with serpent entwined around its hilt, symbolizes the most determined attack in our history on "mankind's cruelest enemy.' And it has become the Sword of Hope for thousands of former cancer patients whose lives were saved because of early detection and prompt and adequate treatment. Many more thousands can be saved annually if we use to the fullest the information and skills now available in the medical field.

The Inner Life

The Bible everywhere emphasizes the importance of the inner life. Man magnifies the external, God places supreme importance upon the heart. One remarks, "The inner life may be as full of adventure, hopes and fears, and 'perilous seas', as the outer life; much more so, indeed, than the average jog-trot existence. It is well that someone should explore it in this cheap and surface age, when people are running over the ground as fast as they can in motors, listening over radios, looking at television, and rarely taking time to think out anything for themselves."

It is the inner life that colours and determines existence. We may undervalue it, neglect it, yet it is the helm which shapes the course of the ship. We may not be interested in it, yet God and the devil struggle there for supremacy in life and character. The great books of the word have dealt with the inner life of man, have been full of the wild adventures of the soul, explorations of unknown continents within, voyages over vast seas of hope and fear, of conscience, of the infinite and the eternal as they lie within human apprehensions.

Don't Blame the Farmers If They Strike Back

Calgary Albertan

The grain handlers at the Lakehead are on the rampage again, determined to pull another strike if their wage demands are not met. This, on top of the present marketing difficulties, would be disastrous.

Wage increases and other fringe benefits for this group must come out of the prices of the grain. The farmer is the loser.

With grain prices going down, markets harder to find and a near crop-failure experienced last year, farm income is seriously reduced. The farmer can't understand why he, as producer of the grain, should take a big cut in wages and at the same time be forced to pay higher wages for the few hundred men at the terminal elevators who handle his grain. He feels victimized, held up, played for a sucker—and he may be right.

Such short-sighted and selfish labor tactics as these contribute to the hostility of farmers toward labor unions generally, and even toward the consuming public. If a small labor union tries to gouge the farmers all it can, why shouldn't the farmers organize more tightly and try to gouge everyone else? If labor has no regard for the farmer, why should the farmer have any regard for anyone else?

If there was responsible leadership in the grain handlers' union the men would forego any further wage demands until there was more money in the product they handle.

ALBERTA TOWN NAMES

Here is some interesting information about the names of Alberta towns. I think you readers will find this interesting:

Bonnyville is called that because the first settlers were French and when they regarded the pretty view around the little town, they called it Bonne and then added the French word for town, which is Ville and the two combined have given us Bonnyville.

In Southern Alberta there is a town called Hemaruka, and it owes its name to the fact that one of the early settlers had four daughters, and the first two letters of each of the girls' names were combined. These names were Helen, Mary, Ruth and Katherine—giving us Hemaruka.

I am also going to tell you the reason our district is called Rife. It is surrounded by a lovely valley whose lakes were once teeming or "rife" with fish and the woodlands abounding with game and wild fruit. The word Rife came into the early settler's mind as he looked about him, and then the word was chosen as a fitting name for this place.

THE PROBLEM OF NARCOTIC DRUGS

By SENATOR F. W. GERSHAW

OTTAWA — There are about 3,3000 known narcotic addicts in Canada and it is realized that a great amount of human suffering is involved. A Senate Committee has been set up to investigate the problem and to bring in recommendations for its solution.

An addict is one who has acquired a physical or mental dependence on a narcotic drug and in nearly all cases the victim is quite unable to help himself. He will deceive his friends and commit almost any crime in his desperation to obtain the drug.

The records show that the people in the country that is now the Arab Kingdom cultivated the poppy in order to extract its juice 5,000 years B.C. It was old in Greek legend before the time of Homer because he has Helen of Troy saying that the Poppy Juice had the power of "inducing forgetfulness of pain and the sense of evil."

Down through the ages the traffic has been the cause of wars and much suffering. India was the chief source of supply and China the chief market. There have been rumors that high schools in Canada are a source of drug addiction. Such is definitely not the case. In all of Canada there are only 26 addicts under 20 years of age. Seven of these are males and 19 females, but none of them were attending school. Most of the addicts are people with no fixed abode and no regular occupation. They often come from broken homes. Many of them have criminal records and many are not strong enough mentally to meet problems that arise, and use dope to induce forgetfulness and as a temporary escape from worry.

One ounce of Heroin is worth about $12.00 wholesale, and would make up about 1750 capsules. These sell to the poor addict for from $3.00 to $5.00 each, so the consumers pay about $5,200 to $8,700 for the ounce.

It has been suggested that Government depots should be set up to suppy addicts with a maintenance dose at cost. In 1919 in U.S.A. some 44 such clinics were opened. By 1924 all were closed as it was found that addicts would get their allowance and then search for more in the illicit market. The clinics were just an additional source of supply.

The ambulatory treatment consists of giving the addict a supply and expecting him to taper off. This always leads to failure. The "Cold Turkey" treatment means a sudden withdrawal. It arouses resentment, is harsh, and most addicts return to the habit when released.

The treatment at Lexington consists of medical care with sedatives for a week, then eight months' institutional treatment with work, play, good food and encouragement. After leaving the hospital, supervision continues and about 60 percent do not return, so many of them may be cured. This treatment means that large sums of money will be required, but in relieving human misery nothing needful can be withheld.

Results Anti-Polio Tests Released

STONY PLAIN — The anti-polio vaccine developed by Dr. Jonas E. Sask of the University of Pittsburgh has been tried out on over 440,000 children in countrywide tests in the United States. Many thousands were vaccinated in Canada, and the indications are that it does build immunity to the disease.

The tests started in April 1954, and the results will be released to the press on April 12 this year The tabulation commenced in November and the results are awaited with eagerness, because it may indicate the conquering of the worst killer and crippler known, but until the results are released officially it is unwise to speculate.

Six big drug companies are preparing to produce the vaccine in commercial quantities, and immunization will commence again in Canada in April with the names of those who received the treatment last year being given out at the same time. The days scheduled for the new season's work will be named soon and pupils of the grades chosen must be present at the schools at the time set for the three injections.

North Stars To Carry Freight

Mr. W. M. Garven, District Traffic and Sales Manager, Trans-Canada Air Lines, Edmonton, announces the commencement on May 1 of a new and increased air freight service across Canada. North Star aircraft converted for use as air freighters will be used for this extension of service, providing a fully pressurized and heated cabin for the carriage of practically all commodities, with a lift per aircraft of approximately 18,000 pounds. Daily service Monday through Friday both eastbound and westbound is scheduled. The first flight will leave Montreal at 8:20 p.m., arriving in Edmonton 6:40 p.m. on May 2, Toronto at 11:00 a.m.
